Kan Ditch Bill.

The first public hearing on the Kau Ditch bill was held during the week. Here again was brought in evidence the apparent distrust that the Kau Ditch bill is not exactly what the publie wish it to be, namely an enterprise in which the public is reasonably well safeguarded. It appears that in the original resolution many of the objectionable features of the bill that went before Congress, were eliminated. But quite recently a separate bill giving wide privileges of condemnation to irrigation companies was introduced. The feeling is abroad that this is a dangerous feature of the original Kau Ditch scheme brought around in another form. Should the bill pass, it will be in the face of very vigorous and powerful opposition.

McBryde has been selling in one hundred share lots at 6.75 with every present prospect of going higher, after the meeting of the stockholders to be held the coming week to pass upon the scheme of wiping out the floating indebtedness by issning $800,-000 of preferred stock. Money, as might be expected, is easy. A good share of the stock trading is done on individual trading and there is probably a smaller percentage of the dealers seeking loans than during any previous season.

What Cholera Did. Merchandise business is holding up well though there is no doubt that the tradesmen lost a very large amount of money in consequence of the cholera scare. Not only did many people leave the city hurriedly but the reports that went to the Coast caused bookings to be cancelled by those intending to come to the islands One San Francisco steamship line alone reports bookings totalling six thousand dollars in fares withdrawn on account of the reports of cholera in Honolulu. These people would at the very least have spent twice the price of their fares while in the city.
